

The Tragedie

Rich. Cry mercy Lords, and watchfull gentle men,
That you haue tane a rardy sluggard heere.

Lor. How haue you slept my Lord?

Rich. The sweetest sleepe, and fairest boding dreames,
That euer entred in a drowfie head;

Haue I since your departure had my Lord;

Me thought their soules whose body Richard murdered,

Came to my tent and cried on victory:

I promise you my soule is very iocund,

In the remembrance of so faire a dreame;

How farre into the morning is it Lords?

Lor. Vpon the stroke of foure.

Rich. Why then tis time to arme, and giue direction.

More then I haue said, louing country-men, (His Oration to

The leisure and inforcement of the time, (his souldiers.

Forbids to dwell vpon, yet remember this,

God, and our good cause, fight vpon our side,

The prayers of holy Saints and wronged soules,

Like high reard bulwarkes, stand before our faces,

Richard except, those whom we fight against,

Had rather haue vs winne; then him they follow:

For what is he they follow? truly gentlemen,

A bloudie tyrant, and a homicide.

On raised in bloud, and one in bloud established:

One that made meanes to come by that he hath,

And slaughtered those that were the meanes to helpe him:

A base foule stone, made precious by the soyle

Of Englands chaire, where he is falsly set,

On that hath euer beene Gods enemy:

Then if you fight against Gods enemy,

God will in iustice ward you as his souldiers:

If you sweare to put a tyrant downe,

You sleepe in peace the tyrant being slaine,

If you doe fight against your countreyes foes,

Your countreyes fat, shall pay your paines the hire.

If you doe fight in safegard of your wiues,

Your wiues shall welcome home the conquerours:

If you doe free your children from the sword,

Your childrens children quits it in your age:

of Richard the Third.

Then in the name of God and all these rights,

Aduance your standards draw your willing swords

For me, the ransome of my bold attempt,

Shall be this cold corps on the earths could face:

But if I thrive, the gaine of my attempt,

The least of you shall share his part thereof,

Sound drumes and trumpets boldly, and cheerefully,

God, and Saint George, Richmond, and victory.

Enter King Richard, Rat. &c.

King. What sayd Northumberland as touching Richmonds?

Rat. That he was neuer train'd vp in armes.

King. He sayd the truth, and what said Surrey then.

Rat. He smiled and sayd, the better for our purpose.

King. He was in the right, and so indeed it is:

Tell the clocke here The clocke striketh

Giue me a Kalendar, who saw the sunne to day?

Rat. Not I my Lord,

King. then he disdaines to shine, for by the booke,

He should haue brau'd the East an houre agoe,

A blacke day will it be to some body,

Rat. My Lord.

King. The sunne will not be seene to day,

The skie doth frowne and lowre vpon our army,

I would these dewie teares were from the ground,

Not shine to day, why, what is that to me

More then to Richmond? for the selfe-same heauen

That frownes on me looke sadly vpon him.

Enter Norfolk,

Nor. Arme, arme, my Lord, the foe vaunts in the field.

King. Come bustle, bustle, caparison my horse,

Call vp Lord Stanley, bid him bring his power,

I will lead forth my souldiers to the plaine,

And thus my battell shall bee ordered.

My fore-ward shall be drawne in length,

Consisting equally of horse and foote.

Our archers shall be placed in the midst,

John Duke of Norfolk, Thomas Earle of Surrey

Shall haue the leading of the foote and horse,

They thus directed, we will follow.
